

I support Commissioner Copps. There is too much concentration already. It is time for the FCC to stand up to the large conglomerates who are controlling the media. We need choices...As each new technology comes online, the conglomerates move to take over control and ownership (e.g., Murdoch taking over DirectTV). It's time for the FCC to get a reality check. It is time to serve the public interest and not the private interests of large political corporate givers.
